ALABAMA'S COAL INDUSTRY

Spends Millions Yearly For Alabama Farm, Factory and Forest Products

V/HAT Alabama needs most today is a bigger and a better home market. What Alabama is now actually facing is a shrinkage in the market already For many years, Alabama's coal industry has been Alabama's biggest cash customer for Alabama farm, factory and forest products. Its purchases have aggregated many millions yearly. It has been a steady customer for almost everything that grows from Alabama soil-corn, hay, oats, produce in vast quantities. It has been a regular consumer of Alabama livestock, dairy products and poultry. It has been a big buyer of supplies and equipment made by scores of Alabama industries. It has been the principal contributor to Alabama's railroad freight revenues. It has built its villages and tipples from Alabama brick, lumber, and cement, and wherever possible it has given preference to the products Alabama makes and grows. More than any single industry, Alabama coal and coke have been responsible for the prosperity which Alabama has enjoyed. During the nationwide depression of 1920-21, Alabama did not fell the full effects of hard times because Alabama's coal industry was running almost full time. One of the big reasons why Alabama is now feeling so severely this depression, is because Alabama coal mines are now running only one to three days a week. The big buying power of the coal industry has been cut down by outside competition-natural gas, and electricity (even though produced in Alabama) which employ but little Alabama labor in proportion to coal mining. It is not alone the coal producing counties which have suffered. Every section of the state has been blighted by the back-fire.

coke industry loses a customer to Natural Gas or Electricity, an Alabama farmer loses some portion of his biggest and his best home market. Every time an Alabama plant replaces Alabama coal with another form of fuel or power, it is limiting its own home market and its own Children love the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup" and gladly take it even when bilious, feverish, sick, or constipated. No other laxative regulates the tender little bowels so nicely. D EGARDLESS of the kind of fuel you use, HEAT is what you actually want and actually buy, whether fuel to produce that HEAT is delivered to your HOME in a truck or thru a pipe line. Just as distance is measured in inches and weight in ounces, HEAT is measured in B. T. U.'s (British Thermal Units). In order to compare the cost of COAL AND COKE with Natural Gas, compare the cost of the Heat or B. T. U.'s as furnished by each fuel.

Here is a very simple table by which you can easily determine what the same amount of HEAT you are now getting from your COAL OR COKE would cost you, if you substituted Natural Gas in your home. COST OF NATURAL GAS TO EQUAL HEAT UNITS IN A TON OF COAL OR COKE

@ 60 cents @ 60 cents @ 60 cents @ 60 cents 23,000,000 29,000,000 30,000,000 To figure what it would cost YOU to substitute Natural Gas for Coal or Coke in your home heating plant, call your dealer and ask him how many B. T. U.'s per pound are contained in the Coal or Coke you are using. Then find this figure in the left hand column, and you'll find the comparative cost of Natural Gas in the last column on the right. Compare this cost with what you're paying now for Coal or Coke. FOR EXAMPLE: If the Coal or Coke you are burning contains 13,500 B. T. U.'s per pound, it contains (2000 times 13,500) 27,000,000 B. T. U.'s per ton. To produce 27,000,000 B. T. U.'s will require 27,000 cubic feet of natural gas. With Natural Gas at 60 cents per thousand cubic feet you will pay $16.20 to get the same heat from Natural Gas as from one ton of the Coal or Coke you are now using. To find the difference in your home heating costs for the WINTER, merely multiply the cost per ton of your coal by the number of tons you use; then multiply $16.20 by the number of tons you use and subtract the cost of Coal or Coke from the cost of Natural Gas, WHAT A SAVING! THAT'S WHY WE SAY—UNLESS YOU
